The Lox COURTESY THE ARTIST

THE LOX 7 PM, Concord Music Hall, 2047 N. Milwaukee, $64.50. 18+

The Lox are sacred to rap culture. In a genre where getting older isn't celebrated or even necessarily tolerated, the east-coast hip-hop trio of Jason "Jadakiss" Phillips, David "Styles P" Styles, and Sean "Sheek Louch" Jacobs are akin to a mature, top-shelf, small-batch bourbon. Formed by high school friends in 1994, the Lox create highly symbiotic street rap that's earned them a reputation as one of the all-time best groups in the genre.

Rap wouldn't be the same without their contributions. In 1995, their strategic mixtape work as the Warlox led the queen of hip-hop soul, Mary J. Blige (who grew up in Yonkers just like they did), to help them snag their first record deal with the now-disgraced Bad Boy label. Their 1998 debut album, Money, Power & Respect, went platinum, and their 2000 follow-up, We Are the Streets, went gold. Beyond racking up record sales, the Lox worked with fallen heroes DMX and the Notorious B.I.G. during their respective heydays and put a spotlight on their hometown scene when artists from the Big Apple were getting the lion's share of attention.

Through the decades, the Lox have managed to stay together, despite public beefs with Sean Combs, changing music trends, and their members' many successful solo efforts. Not only are they one of the few groups from rap's golden age who are still intact, keen, and healthy (Jadakiss and Styles P own Bronx juice bar Juices for Life), they're also better than they've ever been. Their August performance on NPR's Tiny Desk Concert series was perfectly bulletproof. This trio is still entertaining, sharp, and hungry—which is all good news for legacy rap fans and new listeners alike. If you love your rappers experienced, intelligent, and gangsta, don't miss the Lox's Chicago stop on their 30th-anniversary tour. —CRISTALLE BOWEN

MAGES GUILD TAKEOVER See Pick of the Week on page 30. The night's bill includes Slugscape, Deirdre, Kira600, Yuritech B2B (aka DJ Magitech and Toxicurilovetriangle), Cewlmine, EasyGoingTech, and Donkey Basketball. 9 PM, Empty Bottle, 1035 N. Western, $10. 21+

Noon-8:30 PM (gates open at 11:30 AM), Dawes Park, 1700 Sheridan, Evanston, $59.50, two-day passes sold out.

WEDNESDAY11

SHABOOZEY 7:30 PM, Metro, 3730 N. Clark, sold out.

Like other great synthesizers of country and soul—Ray Charles, Clarence Carter, Swamp Dogg, Veronica June, Beyoncé—Shaboozey understands that the two traditions have often been separated more by corporate marketing niche than by aesthetic or theme. The singer-songwriter's latest album, May's Where I've Been Isn't Where I'm Going (American Dogwood Empire), eases into midtempo story-songs about hard living and hard loving that make it clear Hank Williams and Bobby "Blue" Bland were sitting at the same bars, crying in the same beers. They'd probably both recognize the kind of joint evoked by the album's biggest single, "A Bar Song (Tipsy)."

That overlap is perhaps most obvious on "My Fault," a duet with singer Noah Cyrus. Shaboozey's baritone recalls Waylon Jennings as it rumbles under Cyrus's harmonies on lyrics of such bleak self-loathing they can break the hearts of fans across genres ("Should've been a better man / So don't you keep on trying to fix me / You've done everything you can"). Shaboozey's perfect statement of purpose, though, might be the album's closer, "Finally Over." Its down-home strum is flecked with hints of banjo and pedal steel as Shaboozey emotes with mumbling nonchalance about the end of a relationship, a career, a life. "I'm cool if it's all over," he sings. But he presents the song with such graceful acceptance that it never feels like an end. Shaboozey sees all roots music as his roots music; it's as if he's been everywhere, even though he's still just getting started on where he's going. —NOAH BERLATSKY
